Critics Accuse Ben-Gurion Of Suppressing Documents On Scope Of German Help In Arming Egypt

At the uproarious Knesset (Israeli Parliament) meeting at which Premier David Ben-Gurion fended off a united opposition attempt to force him to reveal what led to the resignation of the head of the security services who exposed the participation of west German scientists in the development of rockets in Egypt, Menahem Begin, leader of the Herut Party, said bluntly he did not have "a molecule of faith" in the official explanation that the official resigned after Mr. Ben-Gurion declined to accept his political evaluation, says the London Times.

Spokesmen for the Liberals, Mapam and the Communists also expressed dissatisfaction with the official explanation. Mr. Ben-Gurion, however, calmly brushed aside their protests and said he had given all the facts. His coalition of four parties, which has been strained over the issue, held together in the vote, and by 67 to 47, with four abstentions, they defeated the opposition proposals for a full dress debate or an investigation by the foreign affairs and security committee.

Mr. Ben-Gurion was also challenged by opposition speakers to state whether he was abiding by the Knesset resolution holding the German people and the Government responsible for the work of the German scientists and calling upon enlightened public opinion throughout the world to combat it.

The Prime Minister was absent from the Knesset on March 20 when the resolution was adopted unanimously, and was later reported to have been upset by the criticism of Dr. Adenauer's Government. [illegible] action taken by the Government after the discussion and resolution in the Knesset was not unsuccessful . . . although final results cannot yet be known."

Critics also accused Mr. Ben-Gurion of suppressing documents revealing the scope of German help in arming Egypt and of causing the campaign against the Bonn Government to be toned down. The Prime Minister neither confirmed nor denied these charges, says the London Times. He said: "Our grave concern over the designs of the Egyptian dictator to destroy Israel and the assistance he is receiving from German and other scientists and technicians should not throw us off balance."

David Ben-Gurion's coalition Government easily thwarted the attempt by the Opposition to force a full parliamentary debate on the issue of the German scientists working in the United Arab Republic.

At the close of this extraordinary session of the Knesset (Parliament) one motion for a full debate and another for submission of the issue to the Foreign Affairs and Security Committee were defeated by identical votes of 67 to 47, with 4 abstentions, says the New York Times. However, a statement said there would be a cabinet security committee meeting on the issue after the Passover holidays. This was interpreted as a gesture by Mr. Ben-Gurion to placate the minority partners of his ruling coalition, who have complained of being insufficiently informed.

The urgent session, which brought the Knesset out of its Passover recess, had been called by the Opposition to clarify the Government's handling of the issue, which has led to the resignation of the chief of the nation's security services.

The Opposition — the Herut, Liberal, Mapam, and Communist parties — got little for its efforts. The Premier turned aside their demands with the easy confidence of a man who knows he has all the votes he needs. [illegible] along party lines.

Speaker Kadish Luz resorted frequently to his gavel as members of Herut and Mapai, the Premier's party, shouted insults at one another.

The campaign against the German nation, was inspired by leaks from security service officials. It was directly counter to the Prem-

United Synagogue Ousts Congregation For Bingo

A Brooklyn synagogue, the Jewish Center of Kings Highway, has been expelled from the United Synagogue of America for sponsoring bingo games for fund-raising purposes. This is the first time since the United Synagogue was organized in 1913 that a congregation has been expelled for this type of offense. The United Synagogue is the congregational arm of the Conservative Movement in Judaism, with more than 760 synagogues in the United States and Canada, and more than a million and a half members and adherents.

The expulsion was announced by the president, George Maislen, of Freeport, L. I., following the unanimous decision of the fifty-man board of directors. The board acted, after many months of negotiations with the synagogue, in accordance with a mandate issued by the national convention in 1961 which adopted standards for synagogue practice containing a ban on "any form of fund-raising not in keeping with the spirit of Judaism." The ban was aimed chiefly at bingo games.

Announcing the expulsion, Mr. Maislen disclosed that two other synagogues, one in Queens and one in Long Island, New York, are under consideration for expulsion in June unless they discontinue bingo. Spokesmen for one of these congregations declared at a meeting before the board that they would try to dissuade the congregation from sponsoring bingo games.

Negotiations with the synagogues were conducted by Henry N. Rapaport, of White Plains, N. Y., [illegible] of the United Synagogue [illegible] of its committee on congregational standards. In [illegible] meeting this year, Mr. Rapaport urged that bingo be banned for charitable institutions as well as private individuals. The statute now on the books exempts charitable institutions from the general ban on bingo.

The Jewish Center of Kings Highway, which has 300 members, joined the United Synagogue in 1944. Announcing the congregation's ouster, Mr. Maislen said:

"The board members decided on the expulsion with a heavy heart and only after a close examination of their conscience. It is not easy to expel a synagogue, but by their insistence on continuing with bingo, the members of the Jewish Center of Kings Highway gave us no choice."

From "Standards For Synagogue Practice", as revised by the biennial convention of the United Synagogue of America, November 12-15, 1961, article five, on fund-raising says:

In the Jewish tradition the raising of funds for the synagogue or for charitable purposes is in itself an act of sanctity and must therefore have the same spiritual quality as the ends to which the funds are to be employed. Synagogues shall therefore not permit any form of fund-raising under their auspices, on or off their premises, which is not in keeping with the spirit of Judaism, or the practice of which is likely to bring discredit and disrepute upon the synagogue, even though such activity may be sanctioned by civil law.

Nine hours after the United Synagogue of America announced the expulsion of the Brooklyn Synagogue for playing bingo, the Rosedale Jewish Center in Queens voted 123-2 to discontinue its bingo operation. The congregation will thus retain its membership in the United Synagogue. The president of the United Synagogue, George Maislen, of Freeport, L.I., who announced the expulsion of the Jewish Center of King's Highway in Brooklyn for playing bingo, welcomed the Rosedale synagogue's action:

"We appreciate the courage of the Rosedale Jewish Center's decision, in straitened circumstances, to drop bingo and seek more proper ways of raising funds. This is the kind of spirit that does credit to the individual congregation, to all 764 congregations in the United Synagogue throughout the U.S. and Canada, and to the million and a half members and adherents of the Conservative Movement in Judaism. I congratulate the Rosedale Jewish Center."

The synagogue was one of three whose representatives attended a hearing before the United Synagogue's board of directors earlier in the week. When the Jewish Center of Kings Highway was expelled, the Rosedale Jewish Center

ISRAEL ASKS RULING TO BRAND WARTIME JEWISH GHETTO POLICE IN ALL NAZI-OCCUPIED EUROPE AS ENEMY, WITH GESTAPO

The State of Israel has asked a District Court at Tel Aviv to brand the wartime Jewish police in all the ghettoes of Nazi-occupied Europe as "an enemy organization" along with the Gestapo and the stormtroopers.

The Jewish police was the executive arm of the Judenrat, the hated "self-governing" Jewish councils appointed by the Nazis. The state of Israel maintains that the Judenrat selected Jews for deportation in accordance with quotas demanded by the Nazis, says the London Times, and the Jewish police rounded up the doomed.

No war crimes tribunal has ever condemned the Jewish police collectively, but an historic ruling is being demanded by the state in the trial of Hirsch Barenblat, aged 46, who was chief of the Jewish police in Bendzin, Poland. There were some 50,000 Jews in Barenblat's town before the Nazi invasion. Some 250 survived. He is charged with having taken part in the round-up of a number which was not specified but which exceeded 12,000.

Barenblat came to Israel four years ago from Poland and worked as rehearsal conductor for the Israel National Opera. He was arrested in 1961 when he appeared as a [illegible] as piano accompanist for a singer, and a survivor from Bendzin in the audience said he recognized him.

Barenblat is charged under 12 counts of the Law for the Punishment of Nazis and Nazi Collaborators, the law under which Adolf Eichmann was condemned and hanged as an organizer of the extermination of the Jews. Five of the counts against Barenblat allege that he delivered persecuted [illegible] and [illegible] to 10 years' imprisonment. A marginal charge is membership in an enemy organization, which is punishable by seven years' imprisonment, and in this connection the state has asked the court to describe the Jewish police as an "enemy organization".

The law defines an "enemy organization" as:

(1) A body of persons which . . . has been declared by a judgment of that (Nuremberg) tribunal to be a criminal organization.

(2) Any body of persons which existed in an enemy country and the object of which was to carry out or assist in carrying out actions of an enemy administration directed against persecuted persons.

At the start of the trial Aryeh Rosenblum, defending, said that Barenblat had used his position to save Jews and he had cooperated with the Jewish underground. David Libai, the prosecutor, did not dispute those claims but said that Barenblat had not saved more than 20 people, says the London Times. "The court will have to decide", Mr. Libai said, "whether saving his own life and a few others . . . justified his having served in the Jewish police."

The only witness called so far was introduced by the prosecutor as one who to some extent owed his life to Barenblat, but he made no attempt to conceal his hatred of the prisoner. The witness, Isaac Naiman, said he was sent to Bendzin by the Jewish underground and supplied with false papers. He was caught in the ghetto by the Jewish police and brought before Barenblat in the Judenrat office.

He said that Barenblat was well dressed and looked officious behind his desk. He mixed pleas to Barenblat for his life with implied threats of underground vengeance if he were not spared, but the chief of police said that he endangered the peace of the ghetto, and sent him through a trap door to a cellar.

The witness said that 30 or 40 Jews in the cellar were quite old or quite young, not of the age groups sent to forced labour. He realized that he had been doomed.

Three days later the prisoners were driven between rows of Jewish police to a van. They wept and wailed as the door slammed shut.

Then someone called out "Naiman" and the door was opened, the witness continued. He was removed and brought before Barenblat, who said there had been intercession from high quarters. He learnt later that Haim Malcsedaki, head of the Judenrat, had intervened under pressure from a local underground leader.

Gestapo officers were present when he was removed from the van and did not interfere, Naiman said. That proved that the Jewish police in Bendzin had wide powers, he claimed.

He also described the house-to-house and bunker-to-bunker searches by the Jewish police and recalled how Jews who had survived a selection wept for those taken away, says the London Times, while Jewish police in boots and uniforms marched singing as though they were returning from a victorious campaign.

The witness observed that at first the Jewish police had tried to save members of their own families but even this became impossible once the Nazis decided to exterminate the Jews in the Upper Silesia region of Poland, where Bendzin is situated, says the New York Times. This came up after the defense noted that two uncles of Mr. Barenblat had been sent to concentration camp.

Mr. Barenblat came to Israel from Poland, and he joined the Na-

Social Notes—Montreal

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Davine, 2670 Goyer Avenue, celebrated the bar-mitzvah of their son, Stephen Charles, which was called to the Reading of the Law, at Cong. T'hilim [illegible]. He is the brother of Mrs. Harry Abramovitch (Jessie), 6106 Somerhurst Street; Mrs. Leonard Slutsky (Libby), 416 Ninety-Fourth Street; and Leon, aged ten years; grandson of Mrs. Goldie Goretsky, 3320 Goyer Street, and the late J. Goretsky; and of the late Mr. and Mrs. S. Davine, Kiddush was observed. That evening, Mr. and Mrs. Davine were hosts to two hundred guests at a dinner and dance in the Synagogue hall. Mrs. Davine wore a sky-blue, peau de soie beaded sheath; designed with a boat neckline; and cap sleeves; and a corsage of white orchids. Mrs. Goretsky, wore a blue shantung ensemble; having a square, lace neckline; and short sleeves; and she had a white orchid corsage. Mrs. Abramovitch wore a pale blue beaded gown; having a V-neckline at the front, and shaping to a lower line at the back; and cap sleeves, and a bouffant skirt; and she had a wristlet of white carnations. Mrs. Slutsky wore a sleeveless, white and black peau de soie and chiffon gown; with a beaded, white chiffon bodice; and jewelled neckline; and a bouffant black peau de soie skirt; and a wristlet of white carnations. Those who lit the candles were: Mrs. Goretsky, grandmother; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Abramovitch, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Slutsky, his brothers-in-law and sisters; Mr. and Mrs. Morris Pollick, uncle and aunt, who are the godparents; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Jaffe, Mr. and Mrs. Moe Goldberg, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gore, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Davine, and Irving Gore, uncles and aunts; Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Davine, and Jerry Pollick, cousins; Miss Molly Schwartz; Arlene and Vicki Abramovitch, and Wendy Slutsky, nieces; and the family. Seated at the head table with the family were: Rabbi and Mrs. Morris Werner; Cantor and Mrs. G. Bercovits, Mr. and Mrs. M. Pollick, Mr. and Mrs. J. Jaffe, Mr. and Mrs. M. Goldberg, Mr. and Mrs. L. Davine, and Mrs. Lilie Davine. The bar-mitzvah boy spoke. Rabbi Werner asked the blessing over the challah. Red and white carnations, and roses; and a white and blue cake, adorned the table. Here for the occasion were: Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Jaffe, uncle and aunt; and Miss Sylvia Davine, cousin, all of Passaic, N.J.

Joshua Wieder, and Reverend S. Friedman. The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She wore a gown of white brocaded peau de soie, fashioned with a fitted bodice, and a scalloped neckline, appliqued with sequins; and long sleeves; and the full skirt had a front panel, and a short, chapel train. Her shoulder-length veil of tulle illusion was held by a crystal crown; and she carried a prayer book, covered with white orchids. Mrs. Essie May, sister of the bride, as matron of honour, was in a pink chiffon sheath gown, with a V-neckline; and short sleeves; and a matching beaded cummerbund. She had a matching tiara, and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. Susan Shapiro, aged five years, sister of the groom, wore a pink organza party dress; having a Peter Pan collar; and short sleeves; and an embroidered, bouffant skirt; and a bandeau of pink and white carnations. She carried a basket of pink and white rose petals. Howard Shapiro was best man for his brother. Allan Cohen, nephew of the bride, was page boy. The wedding flowers were pink and white carnations, gladioli, and chrysanthemums. The wedding music was played by an orchestra. Two hundred and twenty-five guests were received, in the Synagogue hall, by Mrs. Cohen, mother of the bride, who wore a pale blue, peau de soie gown; having an embroidered bodice; and short sleeves; with a side panel, on the skirt; and a matching hat. Her corsage was pink and blue carnations. Mrs. Shapiro, mother of the groom, wore a pink and white lace sheath; designed with a scalloped neckline, and short sleeves; and a matching crown. Her wristlet was of pink carnations. Mr. and Mrs. Larry Shapiro spent their wedding trip at the Concord Hotel, in Kiamesha Lake, N.Y., the bride departing in a red, three-piece, knitted suit. They have taken up residence at 4307 Carlton Avenue. Here for the marriage were: Mr. and Mrs. Morris Anniman, of Toronto, Ont., uncle and aunt of the groom; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cohen, of New York, uncle and aunt of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Lazer Berger, of Tijuana, Mexico; Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Berger, of Syracuse, N.Y; and C. Mince, of Hamilton, Ont.

Hebrew School Heads Urged To Guide Jews Elsewhere

Principals and directors of Hebrew Day Schools throughout the United States have overwhelmingly rejected the claim that Federal aid to religion-sponsored schools might lead to undesirable Government interference in the administration of such schools, said Dr. Joseph Kaminetsky, national director of Torah Umesorah, the National Society for Hebrew Day Schools, who disclosed the results of a survey on Federal aid conducted by the group among 220 Day Schools throughout the country.

In a special report to the educators at the 15th annual convention of the National Association of Hebrew Day School Parent Teachers Association, in Pittsburgh, Pa., Dr. Kaminetsky noted that 86 percent of the school heads expressing a view on the issue said that they did not feel that Federal aid to Day Schools might lead to Government interference. He said that 94 of the schools in 54 cities in the United States responded to the questionnaire.

Noting that fear of Government interference had been used as an argument in opposing Federal aid to Day Schools, Dr. Kaminetsky told the educators that "more than half of those who felt that Federal aid might result in interference by the Government, favored such aid, nevertheless." Dr. Kaminetsky reported that 90 percent of those responding to the general question on Federal aid to Day Schools, "expressed a preference for such aid for the secular portion of the curriculum." Also, 87 percent of the respondents also favored Federal aid for the development and expansion needs of the facilities of Hebrew Day Schools.

The purpose of the survey, he said, was to determine the views of leading Jewish Day School educators on issues vital to their daily tasks and mounting responsibilities. In this connection, Dr. Kaminetsky noted: "Nearly 90 percent of those who responded, expressed the view that Federal aid would make an intensive Jewish education available to many more than the 50,000 currently enrolled in the 275 Jewish Day Schools in this country."

At the concluding banquet session of the convention, Dr. Immanuel Jakobovits, leader of the Fifth Avenue Synagogue, in New York, and former Chief Rabbi of Ireland, urged American Jews to utilize their highly developed know-how in the field of Hebrew Day School education to come to the aid of Jewish communities in other parts of the world, particularly in Europe where, he said, such educational systems are still far behind their American counterparts in intensity and technical skills.

Declaring that the American Hebrew Day School movement was now part of a world-wide shift of emphasis to intensive Jewish education, Dr. Jacobovits said that the disparity between the American Hebrew Day School system and those in other parts of the world should provide American Jews with a challenge to spearhead Jewish educational efforts elsewhere. He added: "Where formerly political and social action were at the center of Jewish communal endeavor, increasing stress is now laid, even in Jewish national circles, on more and better Jewish education as the principal means for Jewish survival and regeneration."

Noting that the trend of establishing Hebrew Day Schools had gained momentum in Europe in recent years, Dr. Jakobovits said, however, that the European schools needed aids in programming, textbooks, teaching methods, public relations techniques, and other skills "which only American experience and resources can provide if their shattered spiritual economy is to be rebuilt."

The Jewish leader told the delegates that, here in America, following the recent Supreme Court decision against prayers in public schools, Hebrew Day Schools were now more vital than ever to preserve and expand the religious foundations of society. He said the Day Schools "will have to bear the major, if not almost exclusive, responsibility to insure that we are not raising a generation of materialistic pagans, dedicated to the pursuit of mundane success instead of service and to the worship of mere happiness in place of idealism and faith."

He added: "If the potential value of a citizen can be gauged by the intensity and comprehensiveness of his education, then no segment of society can hold out a greater promise of excellence and virtue than the products of Jewish Day Schools. For among American schools today, there are none which make as exacting demands on their students as these Yeshiva schools."

tional Opera Company. He was arrested after an escapee of Bendzin recognised the former police chief while he was accompanying a vocal soloist during a performance.

The five most serious charges, each of which can bring a maximum penalty of ten years, allege that he, Barenblat, cooperated with the Nazis in the arrest and deportation to concentration camps or more than 12,500 Jews, including dozens of orphans, in 1942 and 1943.

Among the seven lesser charges is one that, for the first time in a court case, will seek to establish that membership in the Jewish police constituted membership in an enemy organization under the law for the punishment of Nazis and Nazi Collaborators.

THE GOAL OF THE BARON DE HIRSCH INSTITUTE AND JEWISH CHILD WELFARE BUREAU

emotional and psychological problems of being a foster child.

During the year, nine babies were placed in adoption homes, and 18 unmarried mothers were given assistance in confronting this dilemma and in working out plans for themselves and their babies. We screened 87 private adoptions for the Social Welfare Court. Each month, therefore, we supervised 53 children in private foster families; 11 boys and girls in the Group Foster Home on Saranac Avenue; 9 children in adoptive placement; and administered public assistance for 22 children placed in custodial institutions.

Our liaison work with the Social Welfare Court and the Training Schools for boys and girls has continued on a high level, and there is constant attention to Jewish youngsters who may come before the Courts and Training Schools for treatment.

During the year, the Legal Aid Department under S. L. Kuraner, continued to concentrate on direct legal assistance in protecting the rights of Jewish members of our community before the law. This Unit helped to process 623 applicants for various types of Government Pensions, and attends Municipal Court hearings in relation to infractions of by-laws and similar problems. The Legal Aid Committee is continuing its assessment of a more effective way in which this service may be integrated with our case-work services, as well as in expanding its usefulness.

In 1962 we took over full responsibility for all aspects of Cemetery services, and are glad to report that we can now foresee that this service will no longer require any financing from Federation.

Our aim is to not only improve facilities for the community, but to develop more dignified and efficient services and reduce the costs to the families concerned. During the year, 29 men and women and three babies were given free burial, and we assisted 48 burial societies in 453 private interments.

As our agency moves into a second century of service, we go ahead as we glance in the "rear-view mirror" of history and time. Our objective is to provide evermore skilled counselling service to individuals and families in order to enhance their ability to live useful and satisfying lives, and thus to strengthen and build community and social living. We know that not only is the team-approach essential between lay and professional staff, and between community through Federation and the agency, but a team made up of allied disciplines with social work are essential in dealing with the complexity of problems which you and I face.

How shall we measure the effectiveness of our successes and the lessons of our failures?

We know that mental-health problems are at the same stage of public health dimensions as was once tuberculosis and the other illnesses. We know that we need to broaden services to the Aging as well as to children. We know that group methods both in treatment and in training and supervision are essential. We know that the challenges which multi-problem families present to us and other community resources, must be solved. We know that we must attract and recruit not only volunteers and case-aids into our work, but to encourage young people into the profession of human relations.

The Schools of Social Work are expanding, and our own facilities must expand to offer the training that will prepare people for meaningful careers and be the resources of compassionate service.

We need to get closer to psychiatrists, the members of the medical profession, psychologists, nurses, lawyers, teachers, and Rabbis. We must share our experience and learn from others in the field, and build strong councils of social agencies, regional associations, national groups, and even international ways of exchanging and growing.

On the occasion of the Centennial Year, the McGill School of Social Work appointed Mrs. Morris Gertel, formerly of Cornell University, as Baron de Hirsch Centennial Scholar. Public and private bursaries and training programs are needed for newcomers to the field and veterans to improve their skills and experiences.

The enterprise of social welfare, of which family social work is a central part, must find the means and willingness to invest in planned research on which we can base further developments in an organized and intelligent fashion. We must constantly participate in civic affairs in which social welfare legislation and its substance can be upgraded and made to fulfil its vital role in a total program which will lead to the realization of our goal: "To seek the welfare of our city."

As I turn over the helm to my successor, I do so with deep gratitude for all I have received from so many people and groups who give of themselves so unstintingly in service to other human beings. In a world torn between life and death forces, our work stands for people and the future.

To all who have contributed to our work, my associates on the Board and Committees; to Federation and the other sister agencies, and groups of every race and creed, I say "thank you." The families and persons we are privileged to assist are living proof that we are here for the sake of other men. Finally, I must state my deep pride in and admiration for our professional leader, David Weiss, and his staff for the outstanding skill shown in devotion to duty at all times.

TORONTO MARRIAGES

RUBINOFF-KATZ

The marriage of Miss Sheila Key, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max Katz, 93 Acton Avenue, to Stanley Rubinoff, son of Mrs. Rae Rubinoff, 57 Sparrow Avenue, and the late Isaac (Jack) Rubinoff, was solemnized on February 24, at half-past seven o'clock, by Rabbi Bernard Rosenzweig. The bride was given in marriage by her grandmother, Mrs. Bessie Shapiro, of Chicago, Ill., and her uncle, Percy Katz. She wore a white peau de soie; with a scooped neckline appliqued in chiffon. The gown was fashioned with a bouffant skirt, and bustle in the back. Her headdress was a halo of peau de soie and chiffon; and held the fingertip, tulle illusion veil. Her flowers were two white orchids, on a white bible. The maid of honour was Miss Myndie Katz, sister of the bride. She wore a lilac-coloured, peau de soie dress; with a scooped neckline, and three-quarter-length sleeves, and a full skirt. The entire gown was embroidered in beaded appliques. She had a crown of pearls, with a matching veil; and carried a bouquet of white camellias and yellow roses. The flower girl was Iona Katz, sister of the bride. She wore a dress with a powder blue floral design, over powder blue peau de soie, on a white organza background; and a full skirt; and she had a white and blue floral wreath; and carried a basket of rose petals. The best man was Victor Rubinoff, brother of the groom. A dinner and reception followed at the Borochov Centre. Mrs. Katz, the bride's mother, chose a teal-blue gown, of peau de sole. The entire gown was embellished with seed-pearl beads and crystals; and she had a matching hat; and a corsage of yellow roses. Mrs. Rubinoff, the groom's mother, was attired in a royal blue, brocaded sheath gown; with a matching hat; and a corsage of pink carnations. Mrs. Bessie Shapiro, grandmother of the bride, wore a powder blue, corded silk gown; styled with a drape at one side of the skirt, and embroidered in iridescent crystal beads. She had a matching hat; and a corsage of pink roses. Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Rubinoff spent their honeymoon in New York. The bride departed in a three-piece powder blue suit; with navy-blue trimming; and a white pill box hat, with seed-pearl-beads; and a strand of cultured pearls. They are residing at 41 Northgate Drive. Here for the marriage were: Mr. and Mrs. M. Katofsky, uncle and aunt of the bride; Philip Katz, and Miss Betty Zaslowsky, all of Montreal, Que.

WEINBERG-WOLF

The marriage of Miss Patricia Irene Wolf, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Wolf, 56 Meadowbrook Avenue, to Howard Henry Weinberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Saul Weinberg, 354 Winnett Avenue, was solemnized on Sunday, January 13, at half-past five o'clock, at Beth Sholom Synagogue, by Rabbi David Monsen. The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She wore an ivory-coloured, peau de soie, full-length gown. It was completely beaded, with seed-pearl-beads and crystals; and fashioned with a fitted bodice, pointed at waistline; with a bateau neckline; and long, pointed sleeves, appliqued with beading and lace. The full skirt had a front panel, with bouffant sides; and two crystal beaded bows held a cathedral train. Her finger-tip veil of tulle illusion was held by a two-tiered coronet; and she carried a semi-cascade bouquet of pale pink-centred orchids and stephanotis. Mrs. S. Weinberg, sister-in-law of the groom, was matron of honour; and Miss Fyrne Switzman was maid of honour. Each wore a full-length gown, of ice-pink peau de soie; designed with a fitted bodice; and a camisole neckline; with embroidery of bugle beads. Misses Sheila Moscoe, cousin of the bride; Bonnie Garr, Donna Schlacter, and Barbara Rosenberg, were the bridesmaids. Their gowns were fashioned with fitted bodices, and camisole necklines; and were of azalea-pink peau de soie. They had matching, miniature, pill-box hats of the same material, trimmed with beading; and circular veils. Their flowers were cascade bouquets of shaded pink carnations. Karen Shulman was flower girl, wearing a ballerina dress of rose-pink peau de soie, trimmed with illusion tulle rosebuds. She had a garland of pink roses; and carried a basket of rose petals. Morton Weinberg, brother of the groom, was best man. The ushers were: Raymond Wolf, brother of the bride; Dr. Norman Levine, Dr. Howard Spillman, cousins of the groom; Ronald Milrod, Howard Milne, Paul Miller and Melvin Isen. Jeffrey Weinberg, nephew of the groom, was ring-bearer. The wedding background consisted of archways of roses, and decorated candelabra, in shades of pink to cerise-colour. The wedding music was played by Murray Alter and his orchestra. A reception was held in the Synagogue hall, for three hundred and fifty guests. Mrs. Wolf, mother of the bride, wore a long gown of pale pink, hand-painted floral peau de soie, entirely beaded with crystals and bugle beads. It was designed as a strapless sheath; and had a Grecian-styled chiffon coat of a deeper tone of pink. Mrs. Weinberg, mother of the groom, wore a full-length gown of pink and gold-coloured silk brocade, with a jacket of the same shade, short in the front, and full-length at the back. Each had a beaded bandeau; and a corsage of orchids. Mrs. Sonia Kent, of Westcliff-on-the-Sea, England, grandmother of the bride, who was escorted down the aisle by her grandson, Raymond Wolf, wore a long gown of vivid red chiffon, with drapery. She had a corsage of orchids. Mr. and Mrs. Howard Henry Weinberg spent their honeymoon at the Di Lido Hotel, in Miami Beach, Florida; and at Nassau, The Bahamas. The bride departed in a beige suit, trimmed with lynx; and carried a lynx muff. Her corsage was of yellow orchids. Here for the marriage were: Mr. and Mrs. Herman Moscoe, of Timmins, Ont.; Mr. and Mrs. G. Levitt, Mr. and Mrs. H. Newman, of Forest Hills, N.Y.; Charles Feigenblatt, of Bronx, N.Y.; Mr. and Mrs. H. Weinberg, Mr. and Mrs. H. Peppin, of Cleveland, Ohio; Mr and Mrs. B. Dworkin, of Buffalo, N.Y.; Mr. and Mrs. M. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. R. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. J. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. S. Tennenbaum, and Barney Brown, of Guelph, Ont.; and Mr. and Mrs. H. Milgrom, of Hamilton, Ont.

- The Canadian Jewish Review is one of only 33 Audit Bureau of Circulations magazines in Canada, and one of only three published weekly in English. It gives wide, city-to-city coverage for your advertising message, to a high-ranking consumer audience. Received every Friday in the mail, it is read by the family groups which gather together for the Sabbath observance on Friday nights. Every issue is a guide to planning and purchasing, in ship-to-buy homes. Sold by subscription only, the Canadian Jewish Review reaches a select market weekly, families who are receptive to the best in goods and services.
- The Canadian Jewish Review fills a definite need as a link between the individual family and the whole Jewish world at large. It is informative about the trends in Jewish thought and social welfare in these changing times; the important Jewish world news; and reports on the organizational life of all ages in the Jewish group, and all interests in the family, particularly business and professional executives, homemakers and young people.
- The Canadian Jewish Review carries more Passage in Florida resort advertising during the winter season, than any other publication in Canada, daily or weekly; specialized or general; and more single resort advertising accounts than any publication except the New York Times. No account is a contra account. Advertising of all great resort areas appears regularly all year-'round, with subscribing of airlines and steamship lines serving Caribbean, European and Israeli ports and air terminals.

Zacks, and Mr. and Mrs. A. Moldaver, all of Peterboro, Ont.

Mr. and Mrs. David H. Cader, 77 Shallmar Boulevard, gave a dinner and dance, for eighty guests, in the Territories Room, of the Royal York Hotel, on the occasion of their twenty-fifth anniversary. Present were: their children, Patricia and Arnold; Mrs. L. Reich, of Montreal, Que., Mrs. Cader's mother; Mr. and Mrs. H. Starr, and Abraham Weinstein, all of Montreal, Que. Mrs. Cader wore an aquamarine-blue, sequin-trimmed, sheath dress, for the occasion.

Miss Elaine Brenda Gula, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Gula, 1 Enid Crescent, and her fiance, Dr. Norman Wolfish, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Wolfish, 471 Lytton Boulevard, were entertained at a cocktail party, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. I. Merkur, 31 Forest Wood, brother-in-law and sister of the bride-elect, with one hundred guests present. Mrs. Merkur, the hostess, wore a strapless gown of pink, green and white, printed silk, with a bionson white sheer top, with a low back; and a full skirt. Mrs. Gula, mother of the honouree, wore a royal-blue and green printed silk sheath. Mrs. Wolfish, mother of the groom-to-be, wore a gown of black chiffon, with a lace bodice. Miss Elaine Brenda Gula, the bride-elect, wore a gown of white chiffon, with a full skirt, and lace bodice; and had a corsage of pink Calla lilies. The marriage will take place on June 30, at Beth Tzedec Synagogue.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Altman, 198 Goddard Street, celebrated the Passover Seder with their children, Sholem, Zelick, Marsha, and Dov; her brothers, and sisters-in-law: Mr. and Mrs. Julius Goodbaum, and Harriet, Noona, Zelick, Mark, and David, 105 Elm Ridge Drive; Mr. and Mrs. Bert Goodbaum, and Chana, Susan, and Joey, 54 Brookview Drive; and Mr. and Mrs. Mottel Goodbaum, and Stephen, Hyla, and Chava, 52 Raeburn Avenue; and their cousins: Mr. and Mrs. Jack Goldstein, and Elaine, 70 Stormont Avenue; Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Goldstein, 2100 Keele Street; Mrs. Lottie Dolman, and Billy, 30 Fraserwood Avenue; and Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Dolman, 2 Mascot Place; and Dr. and Mrs. S. Weinberg, 62 Meadowbrook Avenue. Joseph Altman conducted the Seder, Marsha Altman, Mark Goodbaum, Susan Goodbaum, and Stephen Goodbaum asked the Four Questions. The table decoration consisted of red tulips, yellow sweetpeas, and orange-coloured, and yellow chrysanthemums with silver candlesticks.

Mr. and Mrs. David Bronstein, 2500 Bathurst Street, received four hundred and fifty guests at the Primrose Club in honour of their daughter, Miss Bonnie Bronstein, and her fiance, Peter Levy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Levy, 201 Rosemary Road. Mrs. Bronstein wore a long, white sheath, with a long tunic and a narrow green tie at the waist. Mrs. Levy wore a long, full-skirted gown in a mulberry shade; with a matching full-length stole. Miss Bronstein, the bride-to-be, was in a long, white, linen sheath, with green beadwork and a scattering of small brilliants. Also present were: Mr. and Mrs. Allan Dubros; and Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Albert, brothers-in-law and sisters of the bride-to-be; Howard Levy, brother of the groom-to-be; and Nancy and Ann Levy, his sisters. The foyer of the club was transformed into a woodland glen, with waterfalls and trees. Pheasants and artificial songbirds nested in the branches and live spring flowers were scattered throughout the rocks and green plants at their base. Green clusters, and garlands of gardenias decorated the entrance to the ballroom; and goblets of blue flowers centred all the tables. A full dance band played Latin American music and upstairs there was dancing to a smaller band.

The marriage took place, on March seventeenth, at half-past five o'clock, at B'nai Israel Beth David Synagogue, with Rabbi Albert Peppenheim officiating.

BRUNSWICK-BLAJ

The marriage of Miss Toby Blaj, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Saul Blaj, 384 Wilson Avenue, to Alan Brunswick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Brunswick, 1840 Bathurst Street, was solemnized at Adath Israel Synagogue, on March 17, at half-past five o'clock, by Rabbi Erwin Schild, assisted by Cantor Murray Nixon. The bride was given in marriage by her parents. Her gown was of white peau de soie, with seed-pearl beadwork on the front; and it was fashioned with a round neckline, on the fitted bodice; and a semi bell-shaped skirt; with a separate cathedral train attached to the waistline. A crown of seed-pearl and rhinestone beads, held a shoulder-length veil of tulle illusion; and she carried an orchid and stephanotis, on a Bible. Mrs. Louis Bainwohl, sister of the bride, was matron of honour, wearing a gown of pink chiffon, with lace on the bodice, and down the front of the dress. She had a matching pill-box hat; and her flowers were roses, and carnations, in shades of pink, white and mauve. The bridesmaids were: Misses Gloria Brunswick, sister of the groom; and Gloria Beglaubter, cousin of the bride. Each wore a gown of mauve peau de soie, with a lace bodice, and bell-shaped skirt; and a matching bow headdress; and had a bouquet of roses and carnations, in pink, white and mauve. Lorraine Brunswick, sister of the groom; and Helen Winer, niece of the bride, were junior bridesmaids, wearing gowns of pink chiffon, with matching bow headdresses; and had small bouquets of pink, white and mauve roses and carnations. Annette Winer, niece of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a mauve and pink chiffon dress, with a matching headband; and carried an embroidered-topped basket of pink rose petals. Louis Bainwohl, brother-in-law of the bride, was best man. The ushers were: Leslie Cantor, uncle of the groom; Howard Miller, and Donald, and Barry Rowat. The wedding music was played by Maurice Turk and his orchestra. Following the ceremony, three hundred guests were received at a dinner and reception at the Synagogue. Mrs. Blaj, mother of the bride, wore a long sheath gown of beaded, pink silk shantung, with a slight train; and had a matching pill-box hat. Mrs. Brunswick, mother of the groom, wore a sheath gown of pink chiffon over silk, with beadwork on the bodice; and back panels; and she had a matching pill-box hat. They had white orchid corsages. Mr. and Mrs. Alan Brunswick motored to New York for their honeymoon. The bride departed in a shocking-pink wool suit, with a white fox collar; and a flowered hat, in pink shades; and a white orchid corsage. They are residing at 859 Roselawn Avenue. Here from a distance were: Mr. and Mrs. J. Graber, and Mr. and Mrs. Morris Graber; great-uncles and great-aunts, of the bride; H. Graber, K. Roitman, and G. Roitman; cousins of the bride; all of New York; Mrs. G. Noble, and Rosalyn; and Mrs. M. Flicker; cousins of the bride; all of Montreal, Que.; and Mr. and Mrs. J. Miller, of Detroit, Mich.

PRASHKER-ROCKET

The marriage of Miss Tyrral Gail Rocket, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Rocket, 103 Palm Drive, to Arnold Prashker, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Prashker, 17 Dell Park Avenue, was solemnized on March 26, at half-past six o'clock, at Beth Sholom Synagogue, by Rabbi David Monson, assisted by Cantor Henry Wahrman. The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her gown of white Alencon lace, was embroidered with iridescent beads. It was fashioned with a fitted bodice, and a high jewel neckline; and three-quarter-length tapered sleeves; and her A-line skirt terminated in a cathedral train of Alencon lace. A beaded lace pillbox hat, held her fingertip-length veil; and she carried white orchids, and stephanotis, on a Bible. Miss Marcia Stone was maid of honour, wearing a full-length gown of yellow peau de soie, with a beaded bodice; and she had a beaded tiara; and carried a bouquet of white and gold roses. The bridesmaids were: Misses Marsha and Risa Rocket, sisters of the bride. They wore full-length, light-gold, peau-de-soie gowns, re-embroidered in a darker gold. They had matching gold bead-bands, covered with flowers; and carried bouquets of white and gold roses. Michelle Solway, niece of the groom; and Roanne Rockert, cousin of the bride, were flower girls. They wore full-length, light-gold-coloured, bouffant gowns; and had gold-toned and white flowers, with veiling. They carried baskets of gold-toned and white rose petals. Samuel Miller was best man. The ushers were: Howard Rocket, brother of the bride; Henry Levant, Harvey Kahan, Hersch Gordon, Marvin Sniderman, Jack Dodick, Melvin Kay, and Dr. Morley Bernstein. Daniel Solway, nephew of the groom, was ring-bearer. The wedding background was composed of white and gold-shaded chrysanthemums, roses, and gladioli; and leaves, tinted gold. Following the ceremony, guests were received at a dinner and reception at the Synagogue. Mrs. Rocket, mother of the bride, wore a full-length gown of gold-tinted peau de soie, with a sequinned bodice. It was fashioned with an overskirt; the underskirt being raised with a flower. She had a matching gold headdress; and a white and gold-shaded orchid wristlet. Mrs. Prashker, mother of the groom, wore a full-length gown of champagne-toned peau de soie, beaded in front, with three-quarter-length sleeves. Her headpiece matched; and she had a white and gold-coloured orchid wristlet. UNITED SYNAGOGUE OUSTS and a Long Island Congregation in Nassau County received warnings. The Rosedale meeting was the most heavily attended in years. The congregation's president, Jules Granat, said the members decided to give up bingo because they agreed wholeheartedly with the United Synagogue's view that it is immoral for a synagogue to sustain itself from the proceeds of gambling. He said:

"The only reason we sponsored bingo was that it seemed to offer a solution to our tight financial situation. The United Synagogue's administrative experts have shown us how we can solve our problems by acceptable methods and our 350 members are grateful and determined to work their hardest to maintain our synagogue in a proper manner."

Mr. Maislen said that the United Synagogue's board of directors would report on its action to the Golden Jubilee convention to be held at the Concord Hotel, in Kiamesha Lake, N.Y., next November. "I am confident our synagogue delegates will applaud the disciplinary measures the board has adopted," he said.

CRITICS ACCUSE BEN-GURION OF SUPPRESSING DOCUMENTS

ier's policy of conciliation with Germany, so he had returned to Jerusalem, accepted the resignation of the security chief, and halted the inflammatory stories.

The tumultuous special session of the Knesset (Parliament) left the impression that Israeli-West German relations were both complex and shrouded in mystery. Opposition speakers hammered at Mr. Ben-Gurion and the government for allegedly hiding information about the work of German scientists in developing weapons for Egypt. They charged that the government had known about these activities for at least six months.

The London Times reported that an Israeli Government source said that a highly placed German close to Dr. Adenauer conferred with Mr. Ben-Gurion, the Israel Prime Minister, secretly at a holiday resort about a month ago. The source denied press reports that the visitor conveyed assurances from Dr. Adenauer that measures will be taken to bring German scientists home from Egypt where they are working on rockets. However, the visitor was used as an emissary to convey Mr. Ben-Gurion's view to Dr. Adenauer.

The Goal Of The Baron de Hirsch Institute And Jewish Child Welfare Bureau, Of Montreal: "To Seek The Welfare Of Our City"

BY JOSEPH CAPLAN, PRESIDENT, 636 MURRAY HILL AVENUE, MONTREAL

As I present our agency's ninety-ninth report on the eve of our centenary milestone, and the community joins with us in paying tribute to our predecessors for their ideals expressed in human service to their fellow-men, we reaffirm that, "Man is here for the sake of other men".

1962 thus becomes another chapter in a century of growth and evolution as our community grew from less than one thousand souls to over one hundred and two thousand. It is with this sober reflection on our past with its recorded experience of conscientious commitment to family life and to individuals, facing the problems of human existence at every age and stage, that I report a year's work of expansion and continuous reevaluation.

The essence of our work was recently summed up by a client who wrote that the worker had helped him in such a way that "He received advice, but not judgment; help but not charity". This is what professional case-work treatment feels like. It is a warm, sustaining hand that helps one to confront the bewildering complexity of modern life in order to discover one's own true values and grow into the realization of one's aptitudes and abilities.

In 1962 all our services were in greater demand, especially family service. During the year as planned, our Family Welfare and Family Casework Counselling Departments were merged for more effective operation into the Family Service Department, and Miss Lottie Lotheim was appointed as casework director. This will facilitate the in-service training programme of staff, give a unifying family-centered approach to all our work, and further integrate the joint psychiatric consultation and training program we have set up in cooperation with the Jewish General Hospital Psychiatry Department.

In fact, all our resources and services are incorporating the mental-health approach and techniques which are now indispensable in dealing with a variety of specific individual and family problems. Our experience indicates that material indigency is now a residual one.

Without regard to class or position, emotional indigency is now the primary problem of our society, and our caseworkers must be trained and encouraged to refine their skills and use a variety of team approaches. It is gratifying to note that our joint psychiatric program is being studied as a model for similar agencies and hospitals throughout the Province and country. This too is in the tradition of our agency, to experiment with new and better ways of giving more meaningful and helpful services to human beings who call on us in their hour of need.

Our Family Services Department received 811 requests primarily from local residents during the year, of which three out of every four requests were for case-work counselling for marital, family, and parent-child difficulties.

Each month of the year, the F.S.D. served 339 families who required counselling, while another 105 families received supplementary assistance. The Public Assistance Welfare Services in Quebec are becoming true partners in providing basic services for all residents in which income maintenance programs are provided for all residents so that our agency can begin to specialize in rehabilitation, and counselling services. We, however, still administer 20 public assistance cases in order to protect the individuals involved because of a number of supportive services required.

The public assistance agencies today, and in the near future, will be of strategic importance in balanced public and private welfare program. Our agency will then be able to deepen its resources and to pioneer in new and ever wider areas of service to Jewish families and family-life generally in our community.

We are extremely grateful for the ready cooperation of Dr. Nathan Epstein and the Psychiatry Department at the Jewish General Hospital, which permits our agency to render quick and effective services requiring either community resources or hospital care without any delay. We are pleased that our agency not only provides field-work post-graduate training for students from the McGill School of Social Work, but is also now in the second year of its unique use as a training agency for community psychiatrists.

Increasingly more preventive mental-health in family service will mean greater coordination between all the resources within the community. Our staff has responded to the challenges and tasks involved in upgrading and intensifying their skills.

We are aware that to provide the family-centered services of our agency means constant recruitment for more skilled staff who can remain with the agency for longer periods of time. Constant attention to salary scales and personnel practices is vital, as well as proper office facilities, which need to be improved, in all of which Federation's understanding and assistance is greatly appreciated.

Our ability to expand our services is directly related to the number of qualified staff whom we can attract and retain, for the community is in need of this help. We know that various Synagogues are in need of preventive pre-marital counselling on a group basis, and we regret that we have only been able to give special help to the Parents Without Partners Group at the Y.M.-Y.W.H.A., and to Neighbourhood House Nursery School parents.

Our case-loads emphasize that there are various degrees of pathology within the marriages and families coming to us. Critical problems appear shortly after marriage, after seven years, and when youngsters are in need of special care and guidance in their adolescent years. Such clients need long-term treatment and counselling, so that problems may be sorted out, better ways selected of relating to one another and in choosing constructive ways of behaving and functioning.

It is significant that our income from fees, however modest, suggests that there is a large unmet need in suburban areas and other middle-class parts of our community, and we must find ways of reaching out to them before their problems become unendurable.

In regard to our financial assistance service, it is more and more rendered in protecting fatherless families, supplementing Needy Mother Allowance cases, and Old Age Pensioners. Fortunately, in July of the year, the Provincial Department of Family and Social Welfare adjusted its regulations which affected the basic grants of beneficiaries and their rights for special assistance. Our agency has been most active in interpreting special assistance for relief budgets granted to needy persons by the Government. We appreciate the positive cooperation of the leaders of the Department of Family and Social Welfare.

We believe that our financial assistance will increasingly be called on for rehabilitation and encouragement to help individuals improve their ability to function, as well as to protect the most vulnerable groups in our community who are threatened by illness, mental breakdown, lack of skills, and the problems of unemployment.

Though the number is small, our community does have what are now termed "multi-problem families". Because of a variety of difficulties, they find it impossible to manage without the constant support of a social agency.

We need more research in understanding the nature of their problems and how these may be solved without long periods of dependency from one generation to the next. All of us are as vulnerable as those community members who are in constant difficulty and conflict with the values and goals of our society.

In our Service to Elderly Persons, it has become clear that we must coordinate on a "problem-centred" basis this work with that of the Geriatric Clinic of the Jewish Hospital in order to avoid duplication in helping Elderly Persons function as long as possible in the community before custodial care or death overtakes them. One of the results of this unusual collaboration in 1962 has been Federation's move to create a Professional Advisory Committee to the Council of Jewish Aging in order to study and improve all the resources now available to meet the various needs of such Aged Persons and their families.

We expect to experiment with protective foster-home care for Elderly Persons, who are finding it difficult to manage on their own, to help them remain as long as possible, as they desire, in the community in order to avoid the inevitable commitment to institutions which are more expensive and more costly in human fulfilment.

One hundred and twenty-three elderly men and women were helped to establish their eligibility for Old Age Pensions with the assistance of our Legal Aid staff, and as many families and individuals received counselling in relation to improving their own attitudes to one another, and making plans for better care for relatives and old folks.

Our Visiting Homemaker Service of six staff homemakers assisted 129 families, made up of 251 adults and 367 children, for 1163 days' care, to meet the daily problems of a convalescent mother after confinement, or after return home from medical or psychiatric hospitalization. In a direct way, this service prevents the disruption and break-up of families and placement of children.

Another 66 families, made up of 120 adults and 249 children, were given financial assistance to pay for domestic housekeeping services in order to manage more effectively for similar, but longer term problems. Such families purchased 865 days of housekeeping service with our grants.

Our Child Care and Youth Service program assisted twenty-per-cent more children and families than in the previous year. We were fortunate in filling several staff vacancies in this Department, which again made it possible for us to give more intensive services to children and their foster parents and natural parents. We cared for 58 children in 34 families and 11 boys and girls in our Group Foster Home Residences; and 23,183 days and nights of affectionate guidance and encouragement were provided for children whose own homes either were broken or could not keep them. Half of our 34 foster families reside in the suburbs of Cote St. Luc, St. Laurent, and Chomedey. The quality of our foster families care is improving, but we still are in need of more foster families to help us fulfil our primary purpose.

Our Group Foster Homes for boys and girls have proven indispensable, and we recognize that expansion of such group care facilities must be undertaken to meet the more difficult problems of youngsters. Our psychiatric consultation and training program also has been effective for children in placement who need help with many problems, not the least of which is to face up to the many
